

today in brief

Israel, Syria set pullback terms

GENEVA (UPI) — The Israeli-Syrian military working group today reached agreement on the technicalities of troop disengagement and the exchange of all remaining prisoners of war and war dead.

It said the documents would be signed Wednesday, together with detailed disengagement maps.

Colson pleads to plot charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oliver W. Colson, one of President Nixon's former top advisers, pleaded guilty today to being part of a plot to try to assure the conviction of Daniel Ellsberg in the Pentagon Papers trial last year.

Colson could get as much as five years in prison and a fine of $5,000 for his plea to a single count of obstruction of justice, in exchange for dropping of all other charges against him in connection with the Watergate coverup and the Ellsberg cases.

TF Council due Teamster request

TWIN FALLS — The Teamsters Union will seek recognition as bargaining agent for Twin Falls City employees tonight.

Teamster business representative Roy Corsor will call on the City Council to recognize the union as the bargaining agent for city non-clerical wage earners, excluding firemen and police, union spokesmen said today.

Corsor said earlier that if the council refuses to recognize the Teamsters, a strike vote would be called.

Corsor said more than 30 jet pilots of the non-clerical city workers have signed cards seeking Teamster representation.

City attorney Charles Brumbach said earlier the council is not required to recognize the union.

Onassis offers Greeks choice

ATHENS (UPI) — Aristotle Onassis has given the Greek government a choice — cover the losses of his Olympic Airways, the national carrier, or take it over.

Newspaper reports here said the government hasn't made a decision. Onassis reportedly asked that the government start covering his losses as of June 1 in anticipation of a deficit of $40 million to $50 million this year.

Nixon advance party departs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A contingent of planning experts and security specialists left today to lay the groundwork for President Nixon's trips to the Middle East and Moscow this month.

The White House said the group headed first for Europe. One spokesman said the team would be checking out Salzburg, Austria, where the President would probably spend the night en route to the Moscow Summit (talks starting June 27).

US Court clears way for Ray move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today cleared the way for James Earl Ray to withdraw his attorneys, on grounds his attorneys may have influenced his decision because of a planned book about the assassination.

The Court's decision could mean a new trial for Ray, sentenced to 99 years in prison after pleading guilty in 1969 to killing the civil rights leader in a Memphis motel.

Heath says Chou still alert

HONG KONG (UPI) — Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath, back from a visit to China said Premier Chou En-Lai is alert and active but slowing down because of age.

"I thought he was very alert, very well-informed and absolutely on the ball," Heath told a news conference. "He didn't seem to be tired and he seemed very relaxed." Heath conferred with Chou in Peking during his China trip.

Supreme Court won't hear abort case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today declined on technical grounds to decide whether parental or husband consent provisions in state abortion laws are constitutional.

The justices agreed that a district court ruling, holding that Florida's consent law is unconstitutional, should first be appealed to the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals.

Judge rejects Nixon power claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell today rejected President Nixon's claim that he has sole authority to decide whether to surrender evidence subpoenaed for trial of former administration officials in the Ellsberg break-in.

Gesell said the law clearly gives the courts that authority and he has "various tools" he might ultimately use if the material is not produced, including contempt. Indefinite delay of the trial or the dismissal of charges against all men indicted in the case.

The ruling came shortly after one of the four defendants in the case, Charles W. Colson, former special counsel to Nixon, pleaded guilty before Gesell to a single count of obstruction of justice in connection with the 1973 trial of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

All other charges were dropped against Colson, who now faces a maximum prison sentence of five years.

The President claimed authority to decide what evidence to surrender after Colson and another former presidential aide, John D. Ehrlichman, sought access under subpoena to the files they once used in the White House.

Only the court can determine the relevancy or materiality of subpoenaed materials, Gesell said. "These are matters of law, not of policy."

"If the court determines that production is required of any document, that document must be produced."

While Gesell said "the court must reject the President's suggestion" that only he can make such decisions, the judge did accept a compromise proposed by the White House last week on the issue of subpoenaing in the Ellsberg case.

Gesell had threatened to dismiss the indictments in the Ellsberg case if the materials were not produced. Instead, he agreed to a White House suggestion to allow the files to be examined for selection of relevant documents.

He urged that this be done promptly. Gesell said he then would examine the materials and rule on their relevancy.

Ehrlichman's lawyer said they would begin the review and selection process at the White House later in the day and Gesell scheduled another hearing Friday, the morning after the deadline for Nixon to comply with the subpoenas.

The judge noted the law requires that the government "must disclose necessary evidence and there can be no trial unless it is done." He said he would consider "further appropriate action" if Nixon refused to produce subpoenaed documents the court ruled relevant.

Colson, Ehrlichman and three other men had been scheduled to go on trial June 17 for the burglary at Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in 1971. Colson admitted in his guilty plea they were seeking information to discredit Ellsberg.

Concert jam irks sheriff

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Throngs of concertgoers enjoying a warm summer afternoon created a huge traffic jam at Dierkes Lake Sunday, angering the county sheriff.

Sheriff Paul Corder arranged a hastily-called meeting of Twin Falls City and county officials today to consider how best to handle such situations.

The open-air concert had been approved by the city, which owns Dierkes Lake, over the objections of county officials.

Young people, children and dogs filled the concert site and jammed the roadway causing severe traffic problems, according to Sheriff Paul Corder. Corder claimed that many in attendance were "half-intoxicated or intoxicated."

Sheriff's deputies and city police officers worked until 11:30 p.m. clearing traffic on the grade. Cars were parked on both sides of the road, leaving traffic to one lane and occasionally completely blocking traffic. Several private drives were blocked pinning homeowners in their homes.

The concert was billed as a community event, featuring fiddlers, rock bands and a ballet. Twin Falls Sheriff, Paul Corder said he saw cars from Burley and Rupert, Elmore County, and from Texas and Florida as well as Twin Falls.

County Commissioner William Wiseman said today the go-ahead for the concert did not come from the county, but was "complete city authorization." Wiseman, who did not attend the concert, said Corder was upset about the concert and "I don't blame him a damn bit."

The county "received no cooperation" from city police in patrolling the area, Wiseman said, and suggested they be "checked" in the paper. "We're going to let them know how we feel about it," he said.

City Police Chief Frank Barnett said Monday the police "helped the sheriff's office with the traffic." Barnett said city assistance was adequate "as the traffic and their responsibility, and not ours."

Concert organizers Roseann Evans and Lee Halper asked permission from the commissioners to hold the concert about three or four weeks ago, county officials said. The county declined the request on the basis of an ordinance forbidding large gatherings for long periods of time.

City officials said Halper and Evans then took the request to the city parks and recreation department and to Mr. Miller, who gave approval because Dierkes Lake is located on city property where the county officials had no jurisdiction.

Corder was angered by the event. "I hope it's the last one of this type that's authorized," he said.

"It was a bad deal," Corder said. "There were lots of problems — lots of drinking." People were sitting on cars in the middle of the road drinking alcohol, he said.

Ore-Ida offer wins OK

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union voted Sunday afternoon to accept a new, three-year contract with Ore-Ida Foods, Inc.

The new contract covers about 850 workers at the Ore-Ida Burley processing plant.

Would you call the music at Dierkes Lake Sunday: lava rock?

According to tentative contract proposals, Ore-Ida employees will receive a 35-cent per hour raise as of June 1. After next June the employees would receive an additional 32-cent increase, and a further 25-cent increase in 1976.

The increase includes an 8-cent per hour cost of living adjustment.

Local union executive director Robert Gee said the pact also provides employees with "a cost of living protection plan and provisions for a major medical plan and increased disability benefits."

Gee said the new contract also provides an improved company pension plan, overtime pay and increased starting rates for new employees. The agreement was effective June 1, following two months of negotiations.

Over a period of three years the company will gradually eliminate "exempt weeks." Exempt weeks, which are weeks when overtime is not paid, matter how many hours an employee puts in, will be reduced to 10 weeks effective Jan. 1, 1975, and reduced to six weeks the following year. As of Jan. 1, 1977, the exempt weeks will be eliminated completely.

The new contract will provide $10,000 in major medical insurance coverage, effective Jan. 1, 1975. The cost to the employee will be a maximum of $4 per month.

In related Mini-Cassia union activity, no agreement was reached at a Saturday meeting of the J.R. Simplot Co. and the American Federation of Grain Millers negotiators.

Simplot representatives introduced the new proposals to change the expiration date of contracts between the company and the union at the Heyburn plant from May 1 to June 15. An open shop and a union handle "check off" system.

Simplot officials and union representatives will meet again at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Boise for negotiations.

Camas in bloom

FAIRFIELD — Fields of camas flowers are "in full bloom and gorgeous right now," according to a Fairfield resident.

The blue blooms of the bulb plants "make it look like you're just on a lake," said Mrs. Sid Dickinson, a U.S. Forest Service employee in Fairfield.

Carloads of sightseers are lured annually to the Fairfield area by the annual "Camas Blossoming." Mrs. Dickinson said the visitors are already turning out in large numbers on Sundays.

She suggested that "the best place" for observing the fields of blue is south of Hill City, about 15 miles west of Fairfield.

The show is "right at its peak now," she said.

Man dies in Jerome car dive

JEROME — A 35-year-old Jerome man was killed about 7 a.m. today when his automobile plunged into a canal on a county road northeast of here.

Sheriff Eliza Hall said the man, whose name is being withheld until his family can be located and notified, was alone in the car. He said the car failed to negotiate a curve about four miles north and three and three-quarters miles east of Jerome.

The vehicle was westbound when it missed the curve and canyonside. Hall said the car went over the bridge and the driver pinned inside. A farmer living near the scene was able to attach a chain to the vehicle and pull it out with his tractor.

Hall said by the time the farmer pulled the car above the water level, the driver was dead. He said he believed the man died of drowning rather than traffic injuries.

Hall said the man's parents are on a trip and efforts are being made to locate them. Investigation is continuing, he said.

Shutdown halts heavy building

BOISE — A massive strike involving up to 6,000 men has halted most heavy construction on southern Idaho.

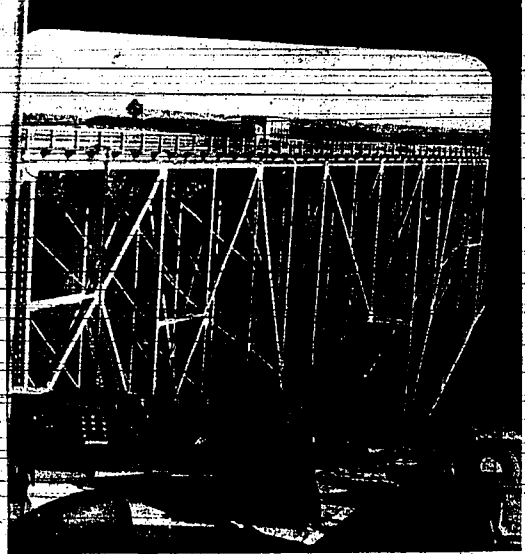

With a 90-per cent agreement, union carpenters, laborers, current masons, operating engineers and teamsters voted Saturday against acceptance of a new contract with the Associated General Contractors of Idaho.

Bob Kinghorn, secretary-treasurer of the five striking unions, said the unions are demanding the wage guaranteed under the previous contract plus a seven per cent per year increase over the next three years.

Because of the two-year wage freeze, union members did not get the money they had successfully bargained for three years ago. When the freeze was lifted, the contractors did not raise wages to meet contract terms, Kinghorn said.

New complex nears finish

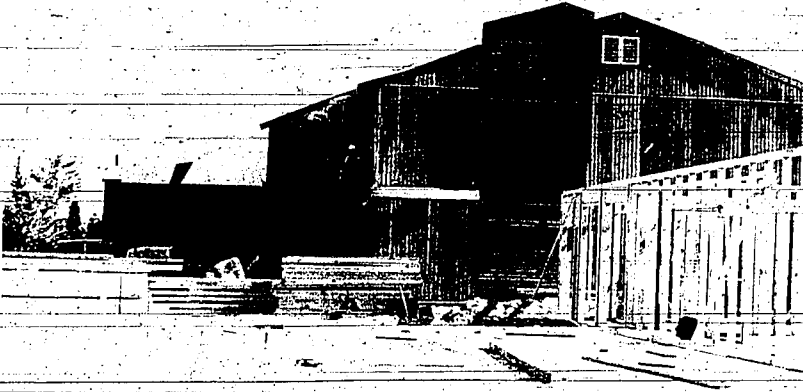

JEROME — A 22-unit low-income apartment complex is nearing completion in Jerome. The complex, located on East Eighth Street behind Bob's Sawtooth Market, is being developed by Neal Brutsche, project designer. He will manage the apartment complex when it is completed.

Brutsche is building another low income apartment complex in Kimberly.

The total project in Jerome calls for six apartment complexes to be completed by next year with three completed by June 1.

Brutsche said the project will be financed by the Farmers Home Administration with a total cost project of $297,000.

Apartments will have one and two bedrooms, complete with private balconies, electric heat and built-in kitchens. They will rent to low-income families as well as to families who do not meet the low-income requirements set forth by the Farmers Home Administration.

U of I cuts off social counseling program

MOSCOW (UPI) — The University of Idaho cut off its social counseling program for a penitentiary this spring because of charges that student volunteers had smuggled contraband and engaged in prostitution.

An article in today's edition of the Lewiston Morning Tribune says the University of Idaho administration learned of the allegations in late February and stopped Idaho's participation within two weeks.

University officials admitted to the Tribune that they knew of the allegations and discontinued Idaho's participation in the social therapy program for Washington State Prison.

The newspaper said its investigation disclosed that Idaho's participation in the joint collegiate program over two years was conducted without qualified faculty supervision even though it was a requirement of both the prison and the program.

There were 47 Idaho students from Idaho working in the program.

The Tribune also found:

— The program's director withdrew prerequisites for participation in the program:

— One Idaho student this year had a previous felony conviction and would have been barred automatically if that had been known;

— One female student became romantically involved with a maximum security inmate and had to be barred from the prison after an alleged incident in a solitary confinement cell on one of the tiers at the Walla Walla prison;

— Prison officials intercepted approximately 100 number of reports from prisoners that indicated some of the Idaho students were slipping inmates illegal items such as drugs, money and gifts;

— No administrative eye was trained on the program. When the problem came to light, no university official was even sure which department was charged with which program. Charges by the program director, Lee H. Bowker, a professor at Whitman College at Walla Walla, Wash., in a letter dated Feb. 24, 1974, that inmates looked forward to counseling sessions by Idaho students because of their "looseness" in regard to penitentiary regulations prompted intervention by John Warren, U of I attorney.

"It would have been easy to have sex with prisoners," a female student said.

Warren advised the university to provide faculty supervision or cease participation in the program.

The administration chose to drop the program and informed the students of the decision in early March.

Ken Johnson, criminology professor at the University, was in charge of the Idaho part of the program. He said he informed the students from the outset that he would not be able to supervise the program. Administrators claim they were not aware of that.

Bowker blamed the incidents on a lack of supervision but said the things that happened would have happened if a supervisor had accompanied the students.

"It all boils down to the kind of student recruited," he said, adding "the first year of the program he required participants to have had at least one course relevant to the work and had screened students for maturity."

But a memorandum from Bowker dated Sept. 15, 1973, instructed Johnson to "loosen up the prerequisites."

"After reviewing the program for the coming year," Bowker wrote, "I have made a determination that I will no longer require that the participating students be members of an ongoing criminology course. Any student willing to participate in the training sessions and regularly attend the sessions at the prison will be acceptable."

Johnson has resigned his position at the University effective this summer to accept a similar position at the University of Colorado.

R. A. Freeman, association superintendent at the prison, also said Idaho's problems stemmed from a lack of supervision.

"We were told there would be a professor with every group. I had been informed that all schools had a developed program. Fading session and administration backing. The situation was developing with the Idaho group that was not good for all concerned."

Freeman said the Idaho group seemed to be "in the limelight" in regards to reports of contraband smuggling. No student interviewed by the Tribune admitted to dope smuggling, although all said it would have been easy to have done so because of the lax guard supervision during the counseling sessions which took place in the cells.

"It would have been easy to have sex with the prisoners," said one female student. "Nobody is around but us and the inmates."

"None of those interviewed knew of any other sexual incidents other than what allegedly took place in the solitary confinement cell."

Gem truckers urged to heed PUC warnings

By RICHARD CHARNOCK

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho truckers who ignore warning tickets from the public utilities commission are headed for trouble in the future.

PUC Administrator Kenneth D. Smith said his agency is reorganizing its transportation division to follow up on such tickets and cite those truckers who fail to heed laws and regulations governing their activities.

In addition, Smith said, the PUC plans to sue delinquent truckers to explain the present laws and regulations and attempt to come up with a bond schedule which will mean "more than just a slap on the wrist."

These and other changes in PUC enforcement procedures and emphasis are an outgrowth of a legislative audit critical of the agency's operation.

Because of that performance audit the three commissioners promoted Smith to the newly created post of administrator last January from assistant director-for-utilities.

"That audit report pointed out the whole field program was ineffective," Smith said.

"We had complaints from the transport association, the truckers — everybody."

Until recently, the PUC employed field agents to look into allegations of illegal trucking activities in Idaho.

Generally, he said, the agents acted more like "traffic cops" than detectives and often failed to get the job done.

When they did find something amiss they usually wrote warning tickets rather than citations.

"As the report showed there were only a couple of citations in a year and a whole barrel full of warning tickets — and no follow up," Smith said.

Besides that, he said, the truckers in the field was on emphasis, operating illegally.

He said the PUC more or less ignored those holding permits but not living up to the requirements.

To correct these and other problems Smith proposed and the commission approved a three-prong program:

— Internal auditing of the carriers' books, observation of equipment and facilities.

— Special investigation in the field on specific, detailed complaints on a form now being designed to give the investigators solid leads and testimony with which to work.

Better use of central records in the Boise office both by the auditors and investigators, with one group assisting and alerting the other.

"Right now we don't get annual reports from these carriers," he said. "We don't know what their financial situation is."

This, he said, is going to change. He is attempting to set up a way of getting annual reports from carriers — and in such a way the compiling of it will not break the small ones.

Field agent jobs are being abolished as of July 1. In fact, two agents — operating out of Coeur d'Alene and Idaho Falls — resigned April 30. The field agents will be replaced by two auditors and two investigators.

Smith said his is starting small in an effort to show the legislature the PUC can make the best possible use of manpower now authorized. If the program proves to be successful and more personnel are needed later to expand it, he said, then he believes he can build a case to go back to the legislature.

Follow up, Smith said, is a very important change being made in the enforcement procedure. Weighmaster reports now are going to be filed with the PUC. If subsequent reports show a trucker overloaded or otherwise "illegal" at Idaho Falls and then again elsewhere in the state, then action will be taken by the PUC.

"We're going to follow through on the port-of-entry contact reports," he said, "and we're going to build a case, file."

Complaint forms are being redesigned to include such information as license numbers, type of commodities illegally hauled, name of shipper, destination, driver's name, type of truck — among other points. Replacements also will be required to sign an agreement to testify.

"We're cutting out wild goose chasing and tying it down to specifics" Smith said. Investigators also will have a certain amount of leeway.

"We have a written policy from the commission that leaves it pretty much up to the investigators. If he sees a flagrant violation he issues a citation — but if there is a misunderstanding a warning ticket will be given. But we will follow up on that (the warning ticket) — and if he ignores the warning then we'll issue a citation."

Smith said he met with the PUC committee of the Motor Transport Association and the members indicated they approved of the changes he proposed.

"They said they were with us all of the way and would cooperate with us in any way they could to get this on the road," he said. "They were critical in the past of our field agent program."

Eden schedules summer class

EDEN — A summer school session for children of migrant laborers will be conducted at the Eden elementary school beginning Wednesday.

The school is sponsored by the federally-funded migrant education program and is directed by the Idaho State Board of Education. Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m. and run until 2 p.m. Children kindergarten age and up can attend the six week session.

Classes in reading, math, physical education, band music and art will be offered. Sewing classes will be conducted by Mrs. Barbara Wood, home economics teacher, from 7 to 9 p.m. daily at the high school, beginning June 11.

Breakfast and lunch will be served to the children at the Eden school. Eden school teachers, Mrs. Nellie Metcalf, Mrs. Annie Romer and Paul Larson will instruct the classes.

He was not known beyond Franklin County, Ark. He had been president of the Charleston school board and the city attorney, an almost obligatory job since he was the only lawyer in town.

He decided that year to break out of the hills and he risked much to do it. He sold his herd of Angus cattle, gave away money to run for governor. A young advertising man named Deloss Walker took a liking to the fresh, quick-witted, affable and utterly unknown candidate. He accepted the challenge of making Bumpers' name known through the kind of self-selling political advertising that is now in vogue around the country.

Accordingly, Brown brushes off Flourney. While the voters eight years ago elected Reagan to get government off their backs, Brown believes they want an "activist" government to solve pollution, auto traffic and corruption. Despite forecasts by his friends that Brown will begin nudging to the right after Tuesday, he believes his reform platform will elect him governor and elevate him to national prominence in the Democratic party.

disillusioned and skeptical of government's ability to handle problems. In that mood, the voters might choose Floumey. Furthermore, voters may be more tired of Reagan personally after eight years than disaffected with Reagan's conservatism.

In the end, anti-Republican bias generated by Watergate may save Brown and the California Democratic party. Floumey's advisers know he must disconnect himself from Watergate without alienating Republicans faithful to President Nixon. They have not yet found that formula.

Watergate is, in fact, the main reason why a Democratic sweep is still possible this year. But its lack of certainty is a danger sign for Democrats that their misperception of political reality could drastically dilute the impact of Watergate.

No, Mr. Hall, what the SLA committed was the vicious acts of spoiled, stubborn children. Violence means hurting other people. There is nothing dramatic or noble about shooting innocent bystanders or extortion. Both are still crimes against the people.

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Morality Agency has just announced that it was lowering its moral standards for the next two years.

Fosdick Gleigheimer told me, "We feel we can lower the moral level of the country without its becoming hazardous to anyone's health." "But why?" I protested. "The whole idea behind the Environmental Morality Agency mandate was to clean up the political pollution in the country."

"We don't like to lower the standards," Fleigensheimer said, "but we have no choice: If we raise the levels of morality in 1974, we could cause massive unemployment on Capitol Hill in November. We also feel that Congress and the Administration need more time to study the best way of doing away with political pollution. I assure you the agency is still concerned about the problem, but we do have to consider the

"What about the public? They were counting on higher moral standards after Watergate. 'We've done some extensive testing in our laboratories, and we've discovered that the average American can't tell the difference between a lie and the truth.' That's the way we know that anyone who's lying is lying. We know that we can increase the dose of false statements and contradictions three times the present level, and people could still live with it. While cleaning up the Watergate atmosphere is being undertaken, then, the President does not want to throw out the baby with the bath water."

"That's well put," I told Feigenheimer. "But aren't you going to have to do something within the next two years to show the country you are going to live up to the higher moral standards in the government?"

"I assure you we're doing everything we can destroy the whole system in the name of morality. But it can't be done overnight. The important thing to remember is that we have been living with low morality levels for a long time. Some people have thrived on them."

"Who sets the morality standards for the country?" I asked.

"The President of the United States. He is in the best position to know just how much morality the country can stand."

"But according to the transcripts, the President was shown to have low moral standards. Isn't it dangerous to let one man have that much power?"

"Nobody's perfect," Fleigenthaler said before President of the United States can live with lower moral standards, so can the rest of the country.

Suppose Ralph Nader or John Gardner sues your agency for not carrying out the provisions of the Politician Clean Air Act. What will you do then?"

"We'd defend ourselves. We'll tap their telephones, audit their income taxes, break into their offices and steal their doctors' records."

"That should do it," I said.

Fleigenthaler said, "I want you to keep in mind that medical exposure in Washington must always have priority over unrealistic moral standards. Otherwise everyone in this town would be out of a job."

And from a year's journey, a personal word of order had begun to become more of an essay than a columnist — delivering real broadsides from his uneasy chair.

The form of opinionated revelation, it was clear, had sharp point on urgent matters. The consequence in the inconsequential seeking new routes to the tops of mountains had been climbed hundreds of times.

An essayist used current events as a metaphor for the world of the 1960s. Why, then, haven't I eschewed the crowded world of columnists and marched to my different drummer? When, after one essay, do I get drawn into the current events of the world?

One reason is that we are living through "one of the great dramas of the century, picking our way through a constitutional minefield, and to achieve that, our managers often requires an effort of the intellect (good, I think, for the term)." The President decides "wallowing in tergite," but to wallow is not only to roll out, but to take delight and to luxuriate: the abuse and perceiving of power offers everyone writing today the chance to probe into nobility, an unalloyed joy, and my own stubbornly lonely opposition to impeachment reforms into a private wallowing pen with hot and lid running leakers.

Small wonder, then, that I have been so often seduced from the ambition of essaying. The vivid renaissance, the rampant, the curious similarity of bloodlust that turns opponents in to enemies, the varying interpretations of our inalienable Constitution, are like a preoccupying

Governors open drive to restore confidence

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The nation's governors, whose collective political influence seldom comes together on the same cause, moved today toward approval of a strong resolution on the volatile question of what to do after Watergate.

As about 45 chief state executives gather for the 174 National Governors Conference here, a campaign was generating support for a powerful specific statement on rooting corruption out of government.

Gov. Dan Evans of Washington, host and national chairman of the group, keynoted the meeting with a direct challenge to the federal government. The states, he said, had taken "decisive action in contrast to that of the national government" in fields such as political ethics, campaign reform, consumer protection and no-fault insurance.

"It has been the states who have responded most fully to the problems of the day," he said. "This has been a response not in terms of empty rhetoric without action or visionary promises without dollars. It has been a response which has required executive and legislative courage, sound fiscal management plus a willingness to act."

The first obstacle to putting the conference on record with a formal government ethics resolution was passed Sunday. The group's executive committee, seven of nine members attending, unanimously approved a statement proposed by Republican Gov. William Milliken of Michigan and Democrat Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin which called "the fight to restore citizen confidence in government" the "first obligation of every government official."

The resolution, which will be debated and acted upon Wednesday, urges "all levels of government" to ensure "loophole-free" campaign finance regulations, with limits on contributions and spending; "stringent ethical codes for government" officials, which clearly define conflict of interest; "an end to secrecy in government with few exceptions; and registration and full disclosure of lobbying activities by all special interest groups."

Approval of the resolution was considered likely because more than 40 states have approved anticorruption legislation of varying strength in the past year. Thus the governors would not be criticizing themselves and their legislatures.

However, the resolution could be taken as a message aimed at Congress, where the Senate has passed two campaign finance reform bills since last fall but the House has failed to act.

The Milliken-Lucey proposal has one controversial element, calling for "experiments in public campaign financing" — an approach opposed by President Nixon and some House Democratic leaders.

Some states have moved into this area along with other campaign reforms, and the suggestion for "experiments" in public financing of campaigns might be acceptable to the governors, whose party line split now is 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

There was a lobbying campaign under way on behalf of the resolution, with officials of Common Cause, the national citizens action group, seeking votes for it.

The mood of the governors arriving in Seattle did seem to favor a strong ethics stand. All six governors who appeared on a preconference national television interview Sunday said they believed Nixon should turn over the White House tapes being demanded by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski. Several governors called for an end to preoccupation with Watergate in favor of confronting other pressing problems of the nation.

Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois, a Democrat, listed the "three most important" of these problems as integrity, inflation and energy.

Opposite opinions

Racial slur charges called 'phony issue'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Allegations that President Nixon used ethnic slurs in his tape-recorded conversations have come up again, but the White House and a Nixon supporter on the House Judiciary Committee both say it is a phony issue.

The issue first arose several weeks ago when the New York Times reported that Nixon had used the terms "Jewboy" and "wop."

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., said Sunday he heard a derogatory ethnic term used by Nixon on one of the tapes now in the committee's possession.

He would not say what it was or whom it was directed against, but Waldie said, "No matter how insensitive the listener is, you could not interpret that language other than an ethnic slur."

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., a Nixon supporter on the committee, called Waldie's charge a "red herring," although he said he had not heard the tape in question.

Waldie and Hogan appeared on CBS' Face the Nation.

"What in the world does this have to do with the impeachment inquiry?" asked Hogan. "I think it's totally nonsensical."

Rep. Fred Buzhardt, a Nixon lawyer, again said he had heard no slurs when he listened to the tapes. Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren also reiterated that no such remarks are on the tape.

INTERVIEWED jointly on television program "Face the Nation" are Rep. Jerome Waldie (left), D-Calif., who said he heard President Nixon utter a racial slur on a White House tape recording, and Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md., both members of the House Judiciary Committee. (UPI)

Waldie, an outspoken advocate of impeachment and a candidate in Tuesday's California gubernatorial primary, said the tape contained "ethnic references and in my view they were derogatory. If Mr. Buzhardt heard these and did not find them such it's an indication of the gross insensitivity that he possesses, as well perhaps as the President."

Buzhardt last month, on the same program, said the New York Times story was part of a "concerted attempt to poison the public mind against the President."

Sunday, he said revival of the issue was an attempt "to divert attention from the inability of the committee to find substantive evidence of an impeachable offense."

"As to Mr. Waldie's reference to my insensitivity," Buzhardt said, "I would suggest that Mr. Waldie's conclusions are aided by imaginative hypersensitivity."

Hogan criticized the committee for deliberating slowly and in secret, echoing Nixon's view that the proceedings should be opened to television cameras immediately.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said Friday that none of the evidence would be made public until it has all been heard, which could take as long as three more weeks.

"This matter is so important that we should be making five or six days a week," Hogan said. "I can't imagine the justification of dragging it out this long."

Georgia's Carter says Nixon won't yield data

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — President Nixon is guilty of trying to conceal the Watergate scandal, says Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and he knows he is guilty.

For that reason, Carter says, Nixon will never yield Watergate tapes even if ordered by the Supreme Court and by Congress — and that ultimately will be his downfall.

Carter, a "new face" Democrat, was one of six governors interviewed Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press on the eve of the opening of the National Governors Conference. All agreed Nixon should yield the tapes and anything else necessary for the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment probe.

But Carter was by far the most outspoken.

"I personally feel the President is guilty, and that the recent evidence would prove it," he said. "It is my own best belief."

"I think he's made a decision that he will be the grounds on which he is ultimately removed from office," said Carter, mentioned as a possible Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

In addition to Carter, Democrats Wendell Ford of Kentucky, Daniel Walker of Illinois and Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, and Republicans Dan Evans of Washington and Tom McCall of Oregon were interviewed.

Evans, host of the convention and chairman of the National Governors' Conference, said that even if Nixon ignores a Supreme Court decision to yield his tapes, it may not be an impeachable offense.

Evans said that if the language in the majority opinion was sufficiently imprecise, Nixon might be able to defy it without the House of Representatives considering it impeachable.

Nixon said last summer he would obey a "definitive"

Supreme Court decision — without yielding how he defined "definitive."

But Evans said that whether the court rules for or against Nixon, the President should yield the tapes.

And his neighbor to the south, Oregon's McCall, said categorically that if Nixon did not yield "everything they want," he should "step down as President."

McCall was the only one of six who favored resignation rather than impeachment. He called impeachment "a completely ludicrous procedure" and "an order the nation can't stand."

He said that if impeachment were a regular trial, Nixon would be given a change of venue from Washington and his lawyers could "manipulate the proceedings" to the question "do you have any preconceptions about this case?"

Drug con game

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — A 30-month study of the drug scene in Palo Alto, Los Angeles and Minneapolis by the University of Pacific's School of Pharmacy has shown that drugs bought on the street are rarely what the seller claims.

The study showed that of 840 alleged mescaline-containing street drugs, only 26 actually contained mescaline. Of 284 alleged psilocybin (PSI) samples, the active ingredients in "magic mushrooms" only 19 contained the drug. And of 149 samples of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), the active ingredient in marijuana, only nine samples contained THC.

The study showed that the drug most dominant in the street market was LSD.

Hanoi given secret pledges

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — Despite public assurances to the contrary, the Nixon administration made secret commitments to North Vietnam when Henry A. Kissinger negotiated the peace agreement in Indochina, government officials say.

Kissinger, then acting as President Nixon's national security adviser, several times assured the nation in public statements that no "secret agreements" with Hanoi were involved in the January 1973 peace agreement.

But a classified State Department in-house report, one of whose details was revealed in an article by free-lance journalist Tad Szulc published Sunday, suggests strongly that two specific U.S. commitments to the North Vietnamese were advanced.

To pull out of South Vietnam within a year of agreement all of the civilians working to support the South Vietnamese armed forces.

To "cease completely and definitely" all American air reconnaissance over North Vietnam.

In his article, in the quarterly Foreign Policy, Szulc claimed that the first of these agreements was still violated on a massive scale.

"An estimated 9,000 American civilians" were still in South Vietnam at the beginning of last month, he wrote.

According to State Department statistics, 870 American civilians were in South Vietnam working directly or indirectly for the government at the end of March.

Of these, 2,543 were contract employees of the Pentagon working with the South Vietnamese military, and 93 were employed directly by the defense attaché office of the American embassy in Saigon. Another 225 made up the official U.S. military contingent at the defense attaché office, and a rest were civilian officials and staffers at the embassy, U.S. Information Service and Agency for International Development.

Grumman demands hidden?

(c) New York Times Service

BETHPAGE, N.Y. — The Office of the Senate Armed Services committee have charged that the Navy concealed an apparent refusal by the Grumman Aerospace Corporation to go ahead with a $32-million contract for 15 F-14 jet fighters unless Grumman was "guaranteed" advance payments of up to $125 million.

The Navy's refusal to comment but Joseph C. Grumman, the company's chairman, denied that requests for additional money for the controversial F-14 "are said the charges were 'irresponsible.'"

Grumman said that work on the swing-wing plane, described as the most advanced fighter plane ever built, was proceeding on schedule.

Senate sources indicated the matter would be discussed when the $21.8 billion military procurement appropriation was considered by the Senate today. The $21.8 billion figure included $722 million that the Navy has requested for more F-14 planes.

Some members of the armed services committee were reportedly concerned that the Senate would kill the program, when it took up the military appropriations matter.

Probers reject Nixon milk view

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Watergate investigators have rejected President Nixon's explanation of why he raised milk price supports in 1971, and they suggest he was influenced by huge campaign fund pledges from milk producers.

"The facts are that (1) when the President made his decision to raise the milk producer commitment of $2 million represented one of the three largest pledges to his campaign," the investigators say in a 335-page report approved by Senate Watergate Committee chairman Sam J. Ervin.

"And (2) the milk producers contributed far more to the President than to all other 1972 presidential candidates combined."

Nixon announced the price support increase on March 25, 1971, two days after he had conferred with dairy industry leaders.

The report says Nixon's decision to boost milk price supports "when he by the very least... was an act of political one-upmanship" and it concludes by rejecting Nixon's claim he considered only the voting "support" milk producers might give him when he decided in their favor.

"By all accounts, the support they had promised him — of which he was aware — and in fact provided, included substantial contributions to the President's campaign," it says. UPI obtained a copy of the report, which has been sent to the other senators on Ervin's Watergate committee for their consideration. It contains these other major points:

— Disclosure that the staff is still investigating allegations that John B. Connally, then Secretary of the Treasury, got $15,000 from milk interests for using his influence within the administration on their behalf.

— The staff's conclusion that $100,000 from the milk producers' campaign donation was used to finance political campaign activities against Democrats.

The report cited testimony at committee hearings by Herbert W. Kalmbach, formerly Nixon's personal attorney, as the source for some of this information on the price support decision and the use made of the campaign money.

In January, Nixon issued a white paper making three main points regarding his price support decision.

There was congressional pressure for a milk price support boost.

Emily, Patricia likeness great

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A police investigator believes fugitives Patricia Hearst, William and Emily Harris would have been friends even if they had not met because of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

"I can see why, understand why, the Harris and Patty Hearst would gravitate toward each other," said homicide Sgt. John Agler of the Oakland Police Department.

"The parallel between Emily and Patty is so striking, you can bet they'd be friends wherever they met," Agler said.

Agler's remarks appeared in the Sunday edition of the San Francisco Examiner, whose president and editor, Randolph A. Hearst, is Miss Hearst's father.

Miss Hearst, 20, was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment by the SLA Feb. 4, but later in-late recordings said she had renounced her old way of life and had joined the group.

"She and the Harris have been sought by the FBI on numerous charges since six SLA members died in a police shootout and fire in Los Angeles May 17.

"They were believed still in the Los Angeles area and have been the objects of an intensive

Day of singing telegram now just part of history

(C) New York Times Service

SAN FRANCISCO — One more thing is disappearing, relinquished to nostalgia and memory and those few history or sociology books that may characterize it — the singing birthday telegram — as yet another example of the kind of thing that lost its place in modern times.

"Tonight at midnight, it will no longer be possible to telephone Western Union and ask that a birthday greeting be sent — or, rather, sung — to your husband, girlfriend, boss or neighbor.

During the last 16 months every state in the country has discontinued this 40-year-old service and tonight California, the last bastion of the singing telegram, will close down, too.

Nobody seems to mind. Company officials shrug their shoulders and say, "So what?" Valerie Verreen, a typist and the mezzo-soprano star singer in the branch office here, has the weekend off and no regrets. And the branch manager, Charles Beauchamp, says: "No, of course, it doesn't make me sad. Why should it?"

And, indeed, why should it? But, still, a small trace of Americana: a small service that cropped up in movies about apple trees and the night next door, is going.

No longer will a telephone ring somewhere and, when answered, a voice begin to sing, in the off-key style of a nonprofessional singer, "Happy birthday to you," "Happy birthday to you," "Happy birthday dear . . . " "Happy birthday to you."

Curiously, this extraordinary American phenomenon — the faceless voice singing a personal greeting — is being discontinued not because of excessive costs to Western Union, officials say, but simply because virtually no one wants it any longer.

The singing telegram began in 1934 and the first greeting was sent, company officials claim, to actor-singer Rudy Vallee at a New York nightclub. He was stunned, by vague accounts, to hear what he heard.

For the next 25 years, however, countless millions of other people sent and received these melodious greetings; but then, interest gradually began to wane.

So anachronistic did the singing telegram finally become that in 1973, for example, according to Rex Parcells, Manager for Western Union's eight-state Western Region, an average of 12 persons a day sent the messages — 12 persons in a region with a total population, according to the 1970 census, of 29,427,415.

But in the same area — California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, and Nevada — there are 50 persons a day, according to Parcells, who says Raggedy Ann dolls with "Happy Birthday" emblazoned on their cotton stomachs.

That greeting costs $2.35, while the singing message costs $1.18 and about 150 people a day in the west, Parcells added, send candy, one of Western Union's most popular services.

So, apparently, today's message-senders simply find dolls and chocolate; and perhaps greeting cards, more appealing than a song.

Nowadays, telegrams delivered to the doorstep by a messenger is a rarity. Western Union has three centralized headquarters where all its telephone calls are received. These are in Reno, Nev., Bridgeton, Mo., and Morristown, N.J. The office in Reno, for example, has 160 operators.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Mary Christian Heising isn't one to beat around the bush.

Mrs. Heising of Lat Jolla, Calif., seeking the District 2 post on the State Board of Equalization, has asked the 26-year-old incumbent, John Lynch of Clovis, Calif., to resign.

Firemen battle stubborn flames

SCUNTHORPE, England (UPI) — Firemen battled stubborn flames fighting the wreckage of a northern England chemical plant today and searched through the blacked debris for workers trapped by a thunderous explosion.

Authorities said Sunday night that the rubble of the Nyrco (UK) Ltd. plant in nearby Filxborough, 160 miles northeast of London, another 21 persons were missing and presumed dead.

A total of 105 persons were reported injured Saturday when the massive explosion rocked the plant, damaging buildings in a 10-mile-wide area and sending up a 200-ft. column of flame and a mile-high cloud of toxic gas.

At the time of the explosion, 70 men were in the Dutch-Belgian-owned plant, which made chemicals for the manufacture of nylon. The blast damaged every home in Filxborough, a town with 310 residents.

Police said the death-toll would have been much higher had the factory been ringed by homes, as is the case with many other British chemical plants.

'Parity' explained

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its report on dairy industry contributions to President Nixon, allegedly in exchange for higher milk price supports, the Senate Watergate committee issued a simple definition of the often confusing term "parity."

It was supplied by Agriculture Department economist Don Paribore, who said:

"If a gallon of milk would buy a pair of overalls in the base period, then to be at 100 per cent of parity, the price of a gallon of milk should be enough to buy a pair of overalls now."

New 'binary system' gas production eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is on the verge of producing a new "binary system" nerve gas which would keep its two ingredients separate and harmless until they are merged at the moment of firing.

The Pentagon has asked Congress for $5.8 million in standby funds in the event a decision is made to begin production. But the proposal faces stiff opposition from many scientists and lawmakers who contend the new weapon would be both pointless and dangerous.

Unlike the nerve gas now stockpiled by the Army, the Pentagon insists the binary system is not a big new weapon but simply an improved delivery system to make transportation and storage of the odorous, tearful, colorless nerve gas safer and cleaner.

Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway is awaiting a secret staff report on whether open-air testing of the new system will

Robbery suspects elude police, search continues

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI) — Nearly 1,000 members of the Civil Guard, led by their new chief and using dogs and helicopters, searched near the French border today for Basque separatists who staged a $233,000 payroll robbery.

Police sources said two men were captured in connection with the shooting death Sunday of a Civil Guard engaged in the search, but it was not known whether those suspects had any part in the holdup. Friday of railroad equipment factory.

A third man, believed to have shot the policeman, escaped. One of the suspects in the payroll robbery was captured Saturday and the money recovered.

The suspect was identified as Juan Laborde, 25, said to be a full-time member of the separatist organization "Basque — Homelands — and Liberty" (ETA), which for several years has waged a guerrilla war of robberies, bombings and kidnappings in the Basque country of northern Spain.

ETA also claimed responsibility for the December bomb-slaying in Madrid of Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco.

The search for the ETA men was led by the new head of the Civil Guard, J. Gen. Jose Vega Rodriguez. It was the second such mobilization of police along the French border in two weeks.

Earlier, police had sought two ETA members who fled into France after two companions were killed in a seaside gun battle with police.

After the assassination of Carrero Blanco, Spain protested to the French government that ETA guerrillas were making raids into Spain from bases in southern France.

In another part of the Basque country, the office of the archbishop of Pamplona made public a note protesting a police eviction of workers from a church without the archbishop's permission.

Three days ago, police evicted 1,500 auto workers from the Pamplona cathedral, which they had occupied to press demands for higher wages from employers at the Audi factory.

Air operations end announced

BANGKOK (UPI) — Spokesmen today formally announced the impending end of operations in Thailand by Air America, the charter airline linked with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA); in what is regarded as a profile-lowering exercise by the United States.

The announcement was made following ceremonies this afternoon transferring to a local company maintenance work which had been done by Air America of Laos and Cambodia Air Force planes at Udorn Air Base in northeast Thailand.

At the same time, the spokesman confirmed previous disclosures by American sources that the company was ceasing its flying activities based in Thailand and closing out all operations here.

The step ends involvement in Thailand by the company going back to 1962 and as far back as 1959 in neighboring Laos. Since those dates Air America had flown military cargoes and guerrilla troops from bases in both countries for the CIA, as well as doing charter work for other U.S. government agencies.

Spokesmen said the actual transfer of the maintenance activity to Thai Airways Aircraft Maintenance Co., a subsidiary of the government-controlled domestic airline here, was scheduled for June 30. They said a transition period would start immediately.

According to sources here, the local company is expected to take over many Air America employees, including a few American technical and administrative personnel. It also will operate a U.S. government-owned maintenance plant at Udorn.

At the height of its activity, Air America had more than 250 American employees at its Udorn base, many of them helicopter pilots who flew CIA-sponsored missions into Laos and in some cases North Vietnam.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices, aided by a new bank banked lower its prime lending rate, started a broad comeback from recent weakness on the New York Stock Exchange Monday. Trading was quiet.

The Dow Jones Industrial average had risen 3.09 to 866.16 shortly before noon EDT. Last week, the blue chip index dropped 14.48 points as Wall Street continued to worry about rising business loan demand and soaring interest rates.

But as the market opened Monday, First National Bank of Chicago lowered its prime lending rate—first charged on loans to top-rated commercial borrowers—to 11.5 percent from the record 11.75 percent.

Analysts remained unsure whether the move signaled a genuine trend in various interest rates.

Nonetheless, the news sparked bargain hunting in the early going, especially among glamor and oil stocks.

Among the glamor group, Merck (ex-dividend) and Texas Instruments each rose 1/8, and Burroughs a point.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a very loving husband. That's the trouble. He's TOO loving. For example, this morning he drove the kids to school and came back thinking I'd drop everything and make the bedroom scene with him. He often walks around until all the kids are gone, then he starts getting lovey-dovey when I should be getting my housework done.

Will you please tell him that the time for romance is after all the kids are asleep?

Also, he always gets ideas about bowling. Bowling wears me out, but for him it's an afroseshunk for however you spell it. I wouldn't mind if I could sleep the next morning, but I have to get up to drive the car pool. Am I wrong to complain? After all, we're not newlyweds. We've been married for 17 years.

NO BRIDE

Hubby too loving

DEAR NO BRIDE: The ideal time for romance is when both parties are in the mood and have nothing else to do, but unfortunately that's not always possible. I say, shoot the ducks while they're flying—the housework will keep. And if the situation were reversed, I'd advise a husband to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: That answer you gave "Mad at My Husband"—the gal whose husband objected to her wearing a dress with a plunging neckline—sounded like something out of the Dark Ages.

You said, "Some husbands don't mind if their wives dress sexy, but if yours does—don't!"

Abby, you're dead wrong. A woman is entitled to dress any way she chooses—and no one, including her husband, has the right to dictate how she dresses.

Would your answer have been the same if a man had written to say that his wife objected to the way HE dressed?

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: You bet your sweet bippy! More than one wife wrote to complain because her husband had started wearing his pants too tight. I advised her, "Tell your husband that if he wants to wear the pants in the family, he should wear 'em a little looser!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a happy-go-lucky, 25-year-old guy who is still shook by something that happened to me last week.

I went to a newsstand where they sell magazines and paperback books. I got interested in a magazine and started to read it. I was standing there maybe 30 or 40 minutes, reading, when the lady who works there came up and said, "I think you've been here long enough. Either buy that magazine or put it back and leave."

Abby, I was so embarrassed I put the magazine back in the rack and left. A couple of people heard her, and I really felt cheap. Aren't those magazines put out for people to look at? I wasn't bothering anyone or making a disturbance. Did that lady have the right to tell me to leave?

RED FACE

DEAR RED: Yes, but she could have done it quietly and spared you the embarrassment. Leasing through a magazine to decide whether to buy it is one thing—reading it is something else. Magazines that have been read by half a dozen people are fairly shopworn and not easy to sell.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. P.: Look at it this way. Hypertension is the price you pay for being a race horse instead of a cow.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 6790, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 122 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Oswald: "A look at the North-South cards only would suggest a seven diamond contract. It makes easily if diamonds break three-two. All declarer has to do is draw trumps ruff one heart in dummy and discard the other heart on the fourth spade."

Jim: "Even seven notrump isn't too bad a contract. Not that it makes the way the East-West cards are set up, but it would wheel in a lot of the time."

Oswald: "Clubs don't break; diamonds don't break; the heart finesse is wrong and a careless declarer might actually get set at six notrump."

Jim: "He shouldn't be.

There is a very simple end play to bring home twelve tricks."

Oswald: "South starts by cashing three diamonds. Then he runs off four spades while discarding a diamond from his hand. Next come three rounds of clubs. At this time West is known to be holding one diamond and two hearts. South throws West in with dummy's last diamond and West has to lead a heart to give South the last two tricks."

Library to open evenings

SHOSHONE The Shoshone City Library will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays during June and July. Mrs. Marx Nielsen, librarian, announces.

Evening library hours are from 2 to 5:30 p.m. week days, but the extra time is set to accommodate working youths who are in the community during the summer. Mrs. Nielsen said a number of the working boys had contacted her requesting the evening open hours and as long as interest is shown she will keep this schedule through the end-of-July. However, if the library is not used, it will be closed, she pointed out. The summer reading program at the Shoshone City Library will officially begin today, Mrs. Nielsen said.

It will run through Aug. 10, with a special event planned at the conclusion.

There will be awards presented, including certificates and a book to the boy and girl who read the most books.

All school age children are urged to participate in the program and pre-schoolers may become honorary members. Mrs. Nielsen said.

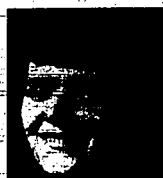

GLENNIS FERRY The Veterans of World War I will meet Thursday noon for a Potluck Dinner at the Veterans' Memorial Hall.

Deanna is a graduate of Murtaugh High School, Ricks College and Brigham Young University.

She has taught home economics at Hanson and is presently the Home-Extension Agent for Jub County in Utah.

Robert is a graduate of Emery County High School, Snow College, and Utah State University.

He has served an LDS mission in the Southwest Indian Mission.

He is employed as a soil scientist with the Soil Conservation Service at Nephi, Utah.

They will be married July 11 in the Ogden LDS Temple and will make their home in Nephi, Utah.

JOC club, Hammett, notes 63rd event

HAMMETT—The J.O.C. club held a luncheon meeting Thursday in the same house in which the group was organized 63 years ago.

When the club was formed April 11, 1911, by eight pioneer women who had come to live on farms after the King-Hill Irrigation project was started in 1908, they met at the home of Mrs. Frank Wilson.

Now it is the home of her daughter, Mrs. Myrri Haller. The club started as a social group but over the years developed as a civic group, completing many projects for the Hammett community.

According to Mrs. Edna Stringfellow, Boise, president of the club, the club has been located to the state for several years.

Twenty members attended the luncheon meeting at which Pollyannus were revealed and "Where your Gifts are ready for Giving"

Miss Hawkins weds Thompson at Buhl

BUHL—LaDawn Hawkins and Archie Thompson were married May 18 at a ceremony in the Buhl Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of June Hawkins, Buhl, and the bridegroom is the son of Virgil Thompson and Mrs. Faylis Moore, both of Buhl.

Rev. Glenn Waltham performed the ceremony before a candlelit altar flanked with feathered flowers.

The bride wore a floor length gown of tiered Chantilly lace with full-length pointed sleeves. Her veil was a four-pointed, shoulder-length tear drop with a pearl center. She carried a bouquet of feather flowers of hot pink and light pink with green feather leaves.

The bride also wore a blue garter, a penny with the year of her birth on it in her shoe, and a string of pearls borrowed from her aunt, Billie Weaver. She carried a white lace handkerchief.

The bride was escorted by her father, Merle Hawkins. Maid of honor was Tammy Givens. Bridal attendants were Sherry Kellon, Roxanne Johnson, and Theda Thompson, sister of the bridegroom.

Best man was Larry Cover. Groomsmen were John Fields, Paul Bach, and Doug Coff. Flower girl was Pam Snodgrass and ringbearer was Dee Dee Snodgrass, both cousins of the bride.

A reception in the church basement followed the wedding ceremony. The reception table was centered with a four-tiered pink and white cake with pink sugar bells topped with a miniature bride-and-groom. Two heartshaped cakes bearing the names of the bride and groom flanked the wedding cake.

Cutting and serving the cake was Laura Weaver, cousin of the bride. Punch and coffee was served by the bride's aunt, Frances Bell. Sherri Olander presented the guest book, and Beth Grill and Becky Shaub were in charge of gifts.

The organist was Mrs. Everett Martin.

The bride's going away ensemble was a dark blue and white pantsuit.

The couple will reside in Jerome.

Swimming lessons planned

SHOSHONE—Red Cross swimming lessons will be given to Lincoln County youths June 17-28 at the Gooding Municipal Pool.

The City of Shoshone will provide transportation for the children within the city limits. Buses will run to Gooding each morning of the two-week period, leaving at the courthouse yards at about 9:15 a.m.

According to Mrs. Claude Chess, city clerk, the lessons will be $6 this year, an increase of $2 per child over last year's price. The increase is attributed to the minimum wage law for instructors.

CHARLENE VINING tells plans

Miss Vining will marry Popplewell

JEROME—Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wiley, Jerome, announce the engagement of their granddaughter, Charlene Ann Vining, to Richard LeRoy Popplewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Father Popplewell, Heyburn.

Miss Vining is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Vining, and was graduated from Jerome High School in 1970. She is a 1973 graduate of Boise State University—now a medical record technician and is employed at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, Rupert.

Popplewell graduated from Minico High School in 1969 and is employed at the J. R. Smilpot processing plant at Heyburn.

The couple plans to June wedding.

Unemployment figures eyed

SEATTLE (UPI) — U.S. Department of Labor figures indicate $1.2 million in unemployment payments were made in Idaho in 1973 with the average weekly rate of unemployment benefits totaling $55.

José C. Ramaker, assistant regional director for Manpower, Seattle, said the payments were "high velocity dollars representing about three times their actual amount in purchasing power" because they were used almost exclusively for every day essentials.

Motorists doubt shortage

BOISE (UPI) — Ken Miller, manager of the Idaho Automobile Association, said motorists have forgotten the recent gasoline shortage since conditions were showing steady improvement in the supply every week.

"Motorists aren't really certain there's a gas shortage," Miller said. "They aren't believing the oil companies and they question the reliability of government energy predictions."

Solon honored

LEWISTON (UPI) — The National Federation of the Blind of Idaho has honored Rep. Emery Hedlund, D-Sp., Maries, with the Thelander Award for his "outstanding efforts" for Idaho's blind residents.

Hedlund was presented the NFB's highest award during its state convention at Lewiston for his work in establishing the Commission for the Blind in 1967 and for "continuously working in our behalf as a legislator, a member of the permanent Building Fund Advisory Committee, and a concerned citizen" in expanding the opportunities available to the blind.

Speakers slated

BOISE (UPI) — The 10th annual convention of the Idaho Association for Retarded Citizens will be highlighted by remarks from two specialists in the area of mental retardation.

Dr. Phillip Roos, executive director of the National Association for Retarded Citizens, will deliver a banquet address June 8, and Dr. Alan Abramson, director of the state's federal clearing house for exceptional children, will deliver the convention keynote address at the opening session June 7.

All-around cowboy

WEISER (UPI) — Enoch Walker, Post, Ore., emerged from the three-day Hells Canyon Rodeo over the weekend as all-around cowboy.

Gary Miller, Prosser, Wash., won the wild ride — an event put on Saturday night by the top six riders in the rodeo.

Break-in reported

TWIN FALLS — Brian Burns, Apartment 2, King's Motel, told Twin Falls police someone broke into his apartment over the weekend and took a television set and a plastic floral arrangement.

The television set was not new and was a black and white set. He estimated loss at $42.

John Berg, 742 Grant Ave., reported someone broke a windshield out of his vehicle Sunday while the car was parked in front of his home. He estimated loss at $165.

President named

BOISE (UPI) — William Holden, Idaho Falls, is the new president of the University of Idaho Alumni Association, Inc., succeeding Carl Berry, San Francisco.

W. Deal, Nampa, is vice president. New directors include Dr. Robert T. Roberge, Caldwell; James F. Chadband and Robert Huntley, both Pocatello; David R. Powell, Salt Lake City, and R. James Mullen, Long Beach, Calif.

Shrouded in secrecy

DENVER (UPI) — The American Basketball Association's Denver Rockets will hold a news conference today reportedly to announce the signing of Carolina Cougars coach Larry Brown and General Manager Carl Scheer.

Brown and Scheer have been negotiating with Denver since Rockets General Manager and Coach Alex Hannum was fired last month and they were told by Cougar's owner Ted Munchak to "seek employment elsewhere."

Munchak told Scheer and Brown he planned to disband the Cougars at the June 20th league meeting.

Bankruptcy cases eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Bankruptcy Judge M.S. Young said one probable reason why Idaho has more bankruptcy cases per capita than surrounding states is that Idaho has the lowest personal property exemption of all surrounding states.

Young said "most states... Washington, for example, allows up to $1,500 in personal property for the average bankruptcy case. Oregon allows substantially more. But in Idaho, the only amounts are up to $200 on a car and $500 on personal goods."

News conference today

BOISE (UPI) — The Region IV recommendation on the size of the Central Idaho Wilderness and the Salmon River has been shrouded in secrecy, the Idaho Statesman reported Sunday.

The recommendation to high level officials in Washington is so secret that even Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, who co-authored the portion of the early recommendation, has not been notified about the modified recommendation.

Judge rejects Calley probe request

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — A federal judge today refused a motion by attorneys for former Army Lt. William Calley to obtain results of an undisclosed investigation by the Army of the My Lai massacre.

U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott said the report had been made available to defense attorneys during Calley's original trial and he felt, therefore, it was not an appropriate matter for use in an appeal.

Accident claims mother, son

CHALLIS (UPI) — Kathleen Ann Mieczkowski, 18, Idaho Falls, and her infant son, Shawn, died Friday night in a one car accident near Challis.

Idaho State Police said Mrs. Mieczkowski drove off the road in an attempt to avoid hitting a cattle truck and landed in Morgan Creek.

Mrs. Mieczkowski stepped out of the car with the baby in her arms, but the current pushed the vehicle against her and the child crushing them against a culvert running over the creek. It said.

Laser beam surveying method tested

By BART QUESNELL

Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A two-inch laser beam fired vertically and traced on a receiver is being used to locate Forest Service property lines exactly.

The Laser Range Pole, the only one in the world, is a (new) property surveying device which allows direct projection of a straight line between adjacent property corners.

The operation consists of two sub-systems, an optical transmitter and a photon receiver.

The transmitter emits a very short frequency, low intensity pulse of ruby laser light which travels vertically. A portion of the light is scattered by air molecules and particles in the atmosphere. This forms the source of photon radiation that is detected by sensitive photomultiplier in the receiver.

If photon radiation is received in the right half of the field of view in the receiver the operator adjusts the receiver to the left until an exact plot can be made.

It may sound complicated, but the Forest Service is overjoyed with the device that is saving time and money over old-fashioned surveying methods.

The new device was introduced for surveying after six years of Forest Service research, according to officials, RCA Corp. contracted to develop the laser after the National Aeronautics and Space Administration conducted feasibility studies on the device.

Dave Branham and Tom Patterson have been assigned by national Forest Service headquarters to test the device on Forest Service land across the United States.

Branham said there are disconnected land exchange records and many thousands of uncertain land boundaries throughout the country between public lands administered by the Forest Service and adjoining private land.

Unfortunately, according to Branham, Forest

Service lands are intermingled in complex patterns with land in private ownership. He said an estimated 750,000 people own parcels of land that have common boundaries with Forest Service land.

"A large percentage," Branham said, "of the property lines between National Forest Service land and adjoining lands in private ownership have not been adequately located and marked on the ground. Many of the surveys that created and still control these property lines in the west are now over 150 years old."

"Because of inadequate protection and maintenance many of the property lines and controlling property corners have been obliterated and lost," he added.

A pamphlet Branham distributed said less than one-tenth of the Forest Service property lines and the property corners are well enough located and marked so that the Forest Service can manage lands and resources up to these property lines with confidence.

Land corners are generally one fourth to one half mile apart according to the officials. With old random traversing methods, they said, the true line of the corners could not be located without error-plagued calculations.

Branham said it would be easy to locate corners on flat ground and lay out a straight line. In Forest Service territory, however, most of the corners are not visible because of dense brush or mountains.

Consequently, the ideal situation would be to send a shaft straight up from the exact corner plotted. The laser serves this function.

The men said the laser range pole was recording mile-long distances with less than three inches of distortion. Crews will mark the exact property lines. Timber company crews then will be able to cut trees right up to the line without allowing a setback which has often amounted to over a 100 feet in the past, the men said.

The initial device cost about $750,000 for research and manufacturing. However, RCA will build more this year if the demand warrants it for around $65,000 each.

According to Branham and Patterson the Forest Service hopes eventually to supply each regional office with a laser device.

The men are still testing the device to see what it can do. Since October they have traveled from coast to coast surveying Forest Service lands.

Recently they surveyed land in Ketchum and in the Stanley Basin. The Sawtooth National Forest has many undetermined property lines of its own and local surveys for the Forest Service are eagerly awaiting their turn at the laser range pole.

New method will make surveying this property much easier

"When I was down there it was very orderly, the young people were conducting themselves in an orderly fashion. We had city employees in attendance down there all day long and they reported no unusual problems of any kind — such as big drunk orgies or narcotics — the use was not terribly flagrant where it caused problems."

The inadequacy of parking caused some traffic problems, Millar said. "We always should have room for emergency equipment to get through and in this case we would have been hard pressed."

"Because of the inadequacy of the parking," Millar said, "certainly it's pointless to try to have another concert of this type in that area. I don't think we would allow that same type of use in that area," he said, until more parking develops in the area — perhaps in "a year or two."

Millar said "we did have a dozen or so cases of lost children," but all were eventually returned to their parents.

Cleanup crews, arranged by concert organizers, were cleaning up debris at the concert site Monday morning.

Two streakers wearing football helmets were reported by one woman attending the concert. The woman said the concert was a misrepresentation because it was advertised as a concert with the old time fiddlers, art and theater and she saw very little music at all.

Other concert-goers said they heard music most of the time.

By contrast, Shoshone Falls park was nearly empty, while crowds of people jammed the roadway and the concert site. Everyone reported "lots of beer" and some claimed they saw narcotics used at the site.

The crowd was mixed. One person in attendance reported "four older men playing poker on a picnic table in the midst of the concert." He said two women brought up their day's catch of fish and ate lunch on a picnic table "oblivious" to the music.

People were throwing frisbees about and lots of dogs were running about the lake site.

O.K. Swenson, who owns a home off the grade, called the concert "just a completely unbelievable situation." Many private drives were blocked, he said, and the officers hadn't told there, I knew they would have caused vandalism. "I slept with my shotgun," he said.

Campaign set

BOISE (UPI) — An administrative assistant in the Department of Education has taken leave of absence to campaign for the post of superintendent of public instruction on the issue of equal educational opportunities.

Roy Truby, 34, has been administrative assistant to Superintendent D.F. Engelking.

He said the most important issue of the campaign is "seeing to it that every Idaho child has equal educational opportunity from kindergarten through high school, including career awareness and vocational/technical training."

High waters good for 'fun run'

RUBBER RAFTING DOWN Salmon Falls Creek from its confluence with Shoshone Creek three miles south of Jackpot through a high-walled lava gorge to the backwaters of Salmon Falls reservoir is adventuresome fun, but it's almost over for the season. Reason: high waters provided by spring snow melt is ending. (To make for better trout fishing, though.) Soon rafting will scrape bottom. Shows are jackpots on their annual "fun run." FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 4, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't state views sharply and critically now, or separations are likely. Also, really listen to understand what others have to say, even if they are caustic. Be gentle and cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Solve problems in the outside world today for excellent results. Contact others by telephone and state your ideas; learn their views. Read tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle monetary matters wisely. Pay pressing bills, and add to present income. Don't rely on one who thinks he is a business expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal time to reach a better understanding with a partner who is in a bad mood and wants away at any cost. Encourage him to stay.

MOON-CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be most efficient at work and derive fine benefits. Build up vitality. Save time for one who is worthwhile cultivating.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan what is best to do that will bring more happiness in the days and years ahead in any area of your life. Show others you try to please them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use much caution today since you feel there is little protection around you. Try not to argue, or you could get into real trouble. Phone a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Be careful and you can solve problems with good friends. Correct any errors you might have made. Don't argue with mate in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use practical sense to get rid of pressures that bother you. Be patient with a partner who is worried and not trying to be obvious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You aren't thinking clearly today, so get advice of higher-up before putting plans, ideas to work. Show others you care about their welfare.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Keep promises. Although you may feel restricted, it is a way to greater success in disguise. Avoid one who bickers too much.

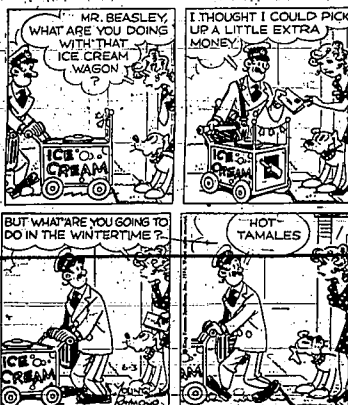

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't mix in where some pal's concern is his own affair, or you get into trouble later. Make his own affairs while the sun shines.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show him you will do more than is expected to assist them. Don't ask for a raise, or you get into trouble.

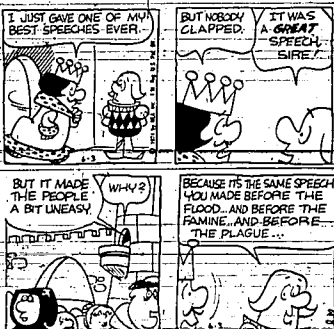

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have many ideas running through this fertile mind and will want to express self while young anywhere, at any time, so teach early to be diplomatic instead of so blunt that others resent it. If many troubles can come into this life. Much of the lifetime could be spent in foreign countries. Sports are fine here.

Bob Menne beats Jerry Heard in Kemper open sudden-death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Surprising Bob Menne, a little known pro who had never come close to winning, drilled in a 30-foot birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday to win the $50,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Menne, who had won only $7,200 on this year's tour, sank a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to force Jerry Heard, who had led all day, into the playoff for the $50,000 first prize.

Menne, 32, from Lawrence, Mass., started the day three strokes back of Heard but dogged him all day before catching him on the final regulation hole.

"This has just been one heck of a week," said Menne, who had to qualify last week to get the right to enter the tournament.

Menne pulled even at the 11th hole with a birdie, his third of the day, but a bogey at the 14th dropped him one shot back.

Menne, who in the meantime had become the gallery favorite with his dogged pursuit, then calmly dropped in the six-footer at 18.

Menne's best previous finish in six years on the tour was a tie for ninth in last year's Southern Open. He tied for 20th in this year's Los Angeles Open and Memphis Classic.

Heard, who whistled and chatted with spectators during the round, shot an unimpressive two-under-par in regulation play, but appeared to have survived the challenge from Menne and hard-charging Dave Hill before the dramatic 18th hole.

Hill caught Heard when he birdied the par-5 15th hole, at 584 yards the longest on the course. But Heard, playing two groups behind, sank a 12-foot putt on the 16th hole to finish one stroke back with a 17-under-par 271.

Hill, who started the day six strokes behind Heard, briefly caught him.

Perry wins again to highlight AL

By United Press International

Gaylord Perry, who has not lost a game since opening day, picked up his ninth straight victory Sunday by tossing a five-hitter in pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 5-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Perry, the first pitcher in the majors to notch nine wins this season, got all the runs he needed on homers by Leron Lee, Oscar Gamble and Dave Duncan. He struck out five and walked six in going the route for the ninth time this season.

Lee, who drove in five runs with a pair of homers Saturday, belted his third homer of the season in the first inning and the Indians chased losing pitcher Paul Spillortoff in a three-run, fourth-inning uprising featuring back-to-back homers by Gamble and Duncan.

In other games Oakland downed Milwaukee 5-2; Boston beat Chicago 5-7. New York ripped Minnesota 11-1, and Detroit blanked California 2-0.

Joe Rudi drove in three runs with a homer and Reggie Jackson added two more with his 14th and 15th homers in leading the A's over Milwaukee. The victory was the fourth in a row and 17th in the last 23 games for the A's and gave them a 3 1/2 game lead in the American League West.

Jackson hit his 14th homer of the season in the second, a towering 325-foot drive to right centerfield, and he added his 15th in the fourth, this one going 350 feet to left.

Rico Petrocelli's two home runs accounted for four runs in the first inning as the Red Sox overpowered the Dodgers over Chicago. The veteran third baseman connected off left-handed Jim Kaat during Boston's five-run third inning and off right-handed reliever Ken Tanaka, a former teammate, in the fifth inning. Tommy Harper also hit a two-run homer off Tatum in the fourth inning.

By winning for the 11th time in their last 14 games, the Red Sox retained their hold on first place in the American League East.

Cubs tip L.A. in NL action

By United Press International

Jose Cardenal's three-run homer, the first home run off Los Angeles' relief ace Mike Marshall in 64 innings this season, ignited a four-run uprising in the seventh inning Sunday when the Chicago Cubs outlasted the Dodgers 7-4.

Marshall replaced starter Don Sutton after the first five innings. But after two out in the seventh, Marshall walked Jerry Morales and Billy Williams on eight consecutive pitches. With a 1-2 count on Cardenal, the Cub rightfielder unloaded his fourth home run of the season into the left field bleachers to overcome a 4-3 Dodgers lead.

The Dodgers had grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first off Rick Reuschel on a single by Bill Russell and Jimmy Wynn's 15th home run of the year. Cubs came back in the half of the inning to tie it on a walk to Don Kessinger and Morales' seventh homer of the year.

In other games, Atlanta blanked Montreal 3-0, St. Louis topped San Diego 5-0, Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh 5-1 and Philadelphia ripped San Diego 4-3. Houston at New York was rained out.

Buz Capra pitched a shutout for his fourth victory of the season and Craig Robinson drove in three runs to lead the Braves' rout of the Expos. Capra, who has lost twice, scattered 10 hits while walking two and striking out four. Atlanta got 16 hits off four Montreal pitchers and scored three runs in both the sixth and seventh innings. Robinson drove in two runs with a sixth inning double and another with a seventh inning single.

Greg Luzinski greeted relief pitcher Randy Moffitt with a two-run homer to cap a fourth eighth inning and give the Phillies their victory over the Gims.

Tony Perez homered and Cesar Geronimo added a run-scoring triple when the Reds defeated the Pirates behind combined five-hit pitching of Fred Norman and Pedro Borbon.

Reliever Vicente Romo walked in Ken Reitz with the go-ahead run in the eighth inning. The eighth inning was the eighth combined five-hit pitching of Fred Norman and Pedro Borbon.

Chris Evert wins title at Rome tennis tourney

ROME (UPI) — America's Chris Evert made the tough shots when they counted today to beat Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-3, and win the women's singles title at the Rome Open tennis championships.

Defending champion Jilte Nastase of Romania thrashed America's Stan Smith, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, in their single semifinal.

"Miss Evert, the top seed, and the sixth-seeded Miss Navratilova traded a pair of service breaks in their opening set before the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., star won a third break in the seventh game to take a 4-3 lead.

With the score 30-30, Miss Evert played a backhand drive just inside the baseline and won the game with a service ace backhand pass.

Miss Evert held her service in the eighth game and broke going while Nastase was in top form from the opening strokes of the one-hour and 20-minute encounter.

The 27-year-old Romanian, saved one set point but lost his first service with a love game and broke Smith's service in the second game at 30-40 when Smith pumped a low backhand volley into the net.

Smith dropped seven straight points before connecting on a crosscourt forehand.

Serving to save the set in the eighth game, Smith went down 0-31, came back to 20-30, then broke Navratilova's service in the second game at 30-40 when Smith pumped a low backhand volley into the net.

Nastase again broke service in the second game of the second set when Smith, forced deep by a forehand drive, was short with a forehand half-volley at 15-40.

Nastase broke Smith again in the eighth to win the second set, 6-2. Smith came back to 30-40 with a perfect forehand shot but surrendered set point with a forehand drive from the service line into the net.

Smith was fourth seeded in the tournament, his first on clay this year. The tall, blond from San Diego, Cal., blew his service in the sixth game of the final set when, down 6-40, he netted a forehand volley.

Smith saved three match points in the eighth game before holding service with a smash. He broke Nastase in the ninth when the Romanian faltered for the only time in the match and erred on four straight points.

Nastase won the set, 6-4, and the match in the next game when Smith again lost his service, hitting a forehand drive wide at 30-40.

Rain lets Rankin win title

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Defending champion Judy Rankin took home the $3,700 first prize in the LPGA Baltimore Golf Championship Sunday when the final round was canceled due to rain and an unplayable Pine Ridge golf course.

Officials waited 2 hours 30 minutes for the steady rain to subside before the LPGA tournament officially was pronounced at an end.

Mrs. Rankin's two-under-par, 36-hole total of 144 earned her a second straight Baltimore title.

The downpour halted the bid of JoAnne Carner of Lake Worth, Fla., for a third straight LPGA victory. Mrs. Carner wound up in a five-way tie for second place at 145, three strokes behind the leader.

There was a three-way tie for second at 145 among Carol Mann, Marilyn Smith and Kathy Whitworth.

Knotted for fifth place in the $40,000 tournament, at 146, were Beth Stone and Mary Wolfe.

Along with Mrs. Carner at 147 were Joyce Kazmerski, Sandra Spisich, Mary Mills and Marlene Hagge.

George Walther is killed in mishap

MIAMI (UPI) — George "Skip" Walther, brother of Indianapolis car driver, Salt Walther, was killed Sunday morning when he was thrown from his power boat in a practice run for the $30,000 Champion Spark Plug limited regatta.

Onlookers at Miami Marine Stadium said Walther's "Redman" boat hit a wave and disappeared in a plume of spray, throwing the Dayton, Ohio, driver from the boat.

He was rushed to Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Doctors said he suffered a skull fracture and massive lacerations of the brain and his arm was severed at the elbow.

Walther was the first unlimited driver to be killed since Tommy Fuchs was killed in 1969 at San Diego. It was the third death in the 11-year history of

Bradshaw signs new pact with Steelers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who rejected "a tremendous offer" from the New York Stars of the World Football League, has signed a multi-year contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers, the National Football League club announced Sunday.

Steelers vice president Dan Rooney said the contract will take effect in the 1978 season. "We did not renegotiate Terry's contract," Rooney said. "He has one more year to go on the original five-year contract which was signed in 1972. It expires after this coming season, and Terry will play under this original contract for the 1978 season."

Rooney and Bradshaw declined to say how long the new contract will be in effect and what Bradshaw will be paid.

Bradshaw's attorney, Les Zitrain, who was present at a news conference announcing the contract signing, also declined to give any details.

Bradshaw had said previously he rejected "a tremendous offer" from the New York Stars and expected an even more tremendous offer to be forthcoming.

Bradshaw said he was "very happy to have resolved this situation." He said he was "very pleased" with the new contract and "happy to remain with an outstanding organization such as the Steelers."

"This is a class team, a class organization and a class city," he said. "I might have signed with the Stars, and in two years not have known where I would be playing."

Bradshaw was a standout college quarterback at Louisiana Tech and was the first player chosen in the 1970 NFL draft. He started eight games for the Steelers in 1970, when he shared the starting role with Terry Hanratty, and became the full-time starter in 1971.

Bradshaw is 25, 6-foot-3 and weighs 218 pounds. He has a strong arm and good speed, and is known as a running quarterback.

Redman defeats Andreotti

LEXINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — Brian Redman of Colne, England, sped past an ailing Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., after 23 laps of heated competition to emerge victorious in the first race of the Formula 5,000 series Sunday at the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course.

Redman, who pressed Andreotti for 23 laps, gained the lead on the 24th lap after Andreotti suffered mechanical problems.

The two drivers, faced with a fast pace in the first half of the 100-mile feature race, battled almost evenly until Redman passed Andreotti on the back straightaway.

Partially involved in the torrid pace was Eppie Wietzes of Toronto, until his Lola T302 blew an engine on the 18th lap. The incident left only Andreotti and Redman in contention.

Andreotti, the favored driver and winner of the 1980 Indianapolis 500, took the lead, just edging out Redman, at the start, and held on tightly, despite several challenges.

Redman, driving a Stag Lola T302, won the race in 1:01.04 on an overall speed of 99.923 miles per hour. He won by a margin of 1:14.352 over second place Brett Lunger of New York. Finishing third was Eppie Wietzes of Colneville, Mich., with David Hobbs, the 1971 Formula 5,000 series champion, fourth.

Andreotti finished 13th.

Don Quarrie stars in Kennedy games

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — They came to see Ivory Crockett and Steve Williams beat Don Quarrie, who didn't figure in most people's minds, ran off with everything but sheet director Dave Maggard's shirt.

This was in the Kennedy Games at the University of California's Edwards Stadium Saturday afternoon before a sun-bathing crowd of about 11,000.

The 100-yard dash was supposed to be a re-run of the previous week's 100 at the Cal Relays in Modesto. In that one, world-record holder Crockett held off Williams to win by an eyelash.

Quarrie, a 23-year-old guy competing from Jamaica who represented his small nation at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, simply didn't figure, but he has been a world class runner ever since he entered

Ex-FBI agent to aid Forest Service

KETCHUM — A former FBI special agent has been added to the "Sawtooth" National Recreation Area to aid rangers interpret special law regulations.

Cecil Wilson, who grew up in Twin Falls and attended Nazarene College, is one of approximately 25 agents across the United States who will answer law questions, train Forest Service personnel and prepare cases to go to court.

He is stationed in the SNRA headquarters but says he is there because the area gets the most tourist use. He has jurisdiction to travel to other Forest Service lands to investigate disputes.

According to Wilson, "We are taking a conservative law enforcement approach. We feel most violations occur through inexperience and lack of knowledge of the rules. We would rather educate with a warning notice rather than take individuals to court."

As tourist travel increases so to does forest violations Wilson said. It has been only "the last 10 years" that special forest service agents have been assigned to heavy use areas he added.

"Our job," Wilson said, "is to take the burden off the ranger and other Forest Service officials. We are drawing up some pretty straight guidelines on violations which all personnel can use uniformly."

Wilson, who was a teacher before becoming a FBI special agent said education was basic to his position.

"I am here to teach Forest Service personnel law enforcement and how it applies to the general use of the forest."

Referring to stacks of Forest Service documents, he said, "We have our own federal regulations. The new laws given by Congress especially on the SNRA could not be handled entirely by Forest Service people."

He said he was in the position to interpret decisions and tell Forest Service personnel how regulations apply.

Although Wilson said the intent of the Forest Service was not to harass tourists he added intentional violators would be cited and if the case warranted a suit would be filed against them.

The Forest Service did file some court suits last year. Working from records and Forest Service documents Wilson said he would investigate old cases and prepare briefs.

Wilson reiterated, "We are going to give the benefit of the doubt to the people."

Wilson said no Forest Service personnel would have firearms on duty. "You see we won't make the physical ability to make arrests," he said. "That's not the intent of the Forest Service," he said. "We want to gain compliance to rules through education."

Even though the Forest Service will follow through with its "public relations" approach Wilson remarked, "I'm sure there will be more problems, with more and more people there's bound to be."

Grape flavor?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why is a grapefruit a grapefruit? The answer, from the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

"In 1814 horticulturist John Lunan first called a variety of the Jamaican pummelo a grapefruit. He thought this fruit resembled the flavor of a grape."

"About 10 years later, another horticulturist again called it a grapefruit. The reason? Grapefruit is borne in bunches like grapes on large trees. The name caught on."

Buhl man awarded scout distinguished award

BULH — A Buhl man is the third man in southern Idaho to earn the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award presented by the Boys Scouts of America. Lloyd Smith was presented the award from the national council at a ceremony Friday night. The award honors adult leaders in scouting who earned the Eagle Scout rank at least 25 years ago and have since distinguished themselves in community service, professional activities and scouting leadership. Dr. Paul B. Houston, Ketchum, past president of the Snake River Area Council and holder of the award, made the presentation. The ceremony was held at the company dinner, marking Smith's retirement after 46 years from the Idaho Power Company. Smith grew up in Jerome and earned his Eagle Scout Badge in 1925. He was named district manager for Oakley by the Idaho Power Company in 1943 and since that time has held that position in Shoshone, Hailey and Buhl.
